JUDGING OF EXHIBITS

Was Begun Yesterday, Awards Being Made in Hog Department.—Complete Stock Awards Tomorrow.—Dad Storm Last Night.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Evanville, Sept. 7.—On account of the cloudy and inclement weather which prevailed today and yesterday, it was decided by the management of the Rock County Fair today, to hold the fair another day, Saturday of this week, should the weather remain unfavorable tomorrow. With a good day tomorrow it is planned to close the fair and run off three races, the special pace, special trot and the farmers' race, in the afternoon. It was three o'clock today before the races were started and as the track was in very poor condition, in spite of much working and dragging, it was evident that the races could not be satisfactorily finished. The outlook late this afternoon was that the fair would be continued Saturday.

There was a large crowd at the fair this afternoon, much larger than was expected and the total attendance today was more than yesterday. It is generally hoped, however, that the fair will be continued another day as there were undoubtedly many who were kept away by the weather conditions.

In spite of the cloudiness yesterday it is estimated that there were fully three thousand persons in attendance and at twelve o'clock today there

The conference was called by the State Progressive Democracy, an organization which seeks the support of all democrats who, in the language of the official call, "are disgusted with the trend of their party affairs and the bipartisan affiliation which exhibited in the election of William Lorimer as United States senator from Illinois." Mayor Carter Harrison is said to be at the head of the movement. Following the preliminary conference today it is proposed to hold a great rally of Progressive Democrats at the State Fair at Springfield next month.

MANY STUDENTS IN CLINTON SCHOOLS

Total Enrollment in Grades and High School Shows Considerable Increase Over Last Year.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Clinton, Sept. 7.—The public schools opened here on Labor day with an increased attendance in all departments and all classes are well filled and more students are expected to enter the classes in a few days. There are sixty-two in the high school, which is five more than the total enrollment for the past year or for five years. An increase is also shown in the grades, each grade having two or three pupils more this year than last. A new feature of the work in the high school is the addition of manual training to the courses, making six courses. They are: English, Latin, German, science, commercial and manual training courses.

A second room is being used for the manual training work and a three-horsepower engine together with an additional lathe and two new benches will be installed. About twenty boys are taking the course.
Four bubbling fountains have been installed in the school buildings and the old-fashioned drinking cups, ordered done away with by the board of health, have been taken away. Water pipes have also been installed in the laboratory and that department has been brought to a high state of efficiency.

The teaching force is composed of the following teachers: Irving Hewitt teaches manual training and assists in history and science; Miss Houde, Latin and German; Miss Stoney, English and theory; Miss Chambers, mathematics and physics; Miss Denz, 6th and 8th grades; Miss Foltz, 3rd and 4th grades; Miss Shynaker, 3rd and 4th grades; Miss Lloyd, kindergarten. MASONRY AND CHURCH IN CLOSE RELATION

ADDRESS BY A. E. MATHESON AT LAYING OF CORNERSTONE OF MILWAUKEE CHURCH SUNDAY.

GATHERING OF MASONS

All Milwaukee Lodges Were Represented at Dedication of Berean Presbyterian Church.

Over three hundred Milwaukee Masons and six Knights gathered Sunday at the laying of the cornerstone of the Berean Presbyterian church in Milwaukee Sunday at which Alexander E. Matheson of this city delivered the address in his capacity of Grand Master of the state of Wisconsin.

It was a remarkable gathering of the Masonic order and Mr. Matheson's remarks on "The Relationship of Masonry and the Christian Church" delivered after the laying of the cornerstone by W. W. Perry, Grand Secretary, were of especial significance to the order in the state. His address follows:

"It affords me great pleasure to appear here today at the laying of the cornerstone of the Berean church in my capacity as Grand Master of the state of Wisconsin. I am pleased to speak as such representative and official of the Masons of this state as well as on my own individual behalf.

"In the ceremonies thus far it has been my pleasure and privilege to assign my functions to our worthy Brother Wm. W. Perry, Grand Secretary of our various Masonic bodies in Wisconsin, and the princely representative of the Masons in this state and elsewhere.

"In doing so I have a triple satisfaction. First, I know that my action is most pleasing to my brethren of the Masonic fraternity, who justly feel that Brother Perry can do these things more fittingly and more impressively than any other upon whom we would feel at liberty to call. In the second place, I know that such action on my part is most agreeable and highly satisfactory to the brethren of the church, the cornerstone of which we lay today with our impressive Masonic ceremonies. Finally, it affords me unstinted personal satisfaction to call to the attention of Grand Master one whom I hold in lofty personal esteem and whose character and ability I prize most highly.

"The ceremonies in which we are engaged today are somewhat unique and for that reason, if for no other, are entitled to attention and consideration more than usual. A body of Christian men and women, acting through their pastor, officials and representatives, desiring to lay the cornerstone of a church which is dedicated to Christian service, has called to its aid the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin, the high representative of the Masons of this state—an institution dedicated to God, and existing for the strengthening and upbuilding of His kingdom. Both institutions are engaged in similar work. If the members of the Christian church and members of Masonic bodies are true to the ideals and purposes of both institutions, they will find themselves laboring in unison for the highest good, strengthening each other in those efforts which have their perfection in the Man of Galilee.

"I am a member of the Christian church. I prize that membership and I look upon the church as the greatest agency which we have for doing good to our fellowmen, making them better, and planting in their hearts and souls those seeds—the fruits of which are the purposes, character and ideals of Jesus, the Christ.

"I believe in the Christian church, and, while men may err and the church may suffer and pass through many changes in the future as in the centuries that have gone, we are certain that this institution is growing more powerful with the passage of the years.

"I also believe in the Masonic Institution or craft. It is designed to increase the reverence, goodness, purity and truth in man. It teaches high ideals and has done mighty work for the good of the world in the past. Here again we know that its influence for good is increasing as the years go by.

"Once again I say that I am a member of the church. I repeat also that I am a member of the Masonic fraternity and that I occupy the position of Grand Master of this state. If I should find myself unable conscientiously to occupy both of these positions, and had to surrender one of them, I would surrender my position in the Masonic fraternity rather than my membership and connection with the Christian church. Happily, however, I am not confronted with this dilemma for I find that in one position I am assisted and supplemented by the associations and teachings of the other. Because I am inspired to strive toward the ideals as taught in the church, I am a better Mason and can better perform the duties of my responsible position as Grand Master; and because I am a Master Mason, I find that I can live a more consistent Christian life, and more successfully weave into my life the ideals of the church and the teachings of the Christian religion.

"The Bible is supremely important in the Christian religion. In such ceremonies as these and considering the purposes for which we have met this afternoon, such an assertion is a mere truism. The Bible too, is supremely important in Masonry. You observed it in a conspicuous place as the cornerstone connected with the laying of this cornerstone progressed. A lodge without a Bible is impossible for as who are engaged in these ceremonies. The most important portion of a lodge is its altar and upon that altar rests the Holy Bible, the same Bible which we, as reverent Christians, honor and venerate. The patron saints of Wisconsin Masons and Masons elsewhere, are St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist, two men who are highly honored likewise in the church.

"It has been said that Masonry works counter to the church. This is not so generally, and if it is so in particular cases it is because men have perverted its teachings. Masonry is the handmaiden of religion. There are those who are members of the craft who are not members of the church. We must in the first instance leave it to the individual to decide whether he will be a member of both the Masonic lodge and the church, or of only one, or of neither. These are questions for individual judgment and decision. I say it without any reservation that I find nothing in Masonry which interferes with the fulfillment of my desires to be a loyal and consistent member of the church, and I find nothing in my membership in the church that interferes with my highest usefulness in Masonry.

"We rejoice in the opportunity for the service which we have rendered today. We have ceremonies that are peculiarly adapted for the laying of cornerstones and the dedication of buildings. Such work is a part of our business as Masons. It is a special pleasure to lay the cornerstone of this church and all the exercises of this church are consistent, fitting and harmonious.

"It only remains for me to say that, on behalf of the Masons of Wisconsin, we wish for the ministers, officers and members of Berean church the very largest success. May God's rich blessings be upon you now and in the years to come, and may you be favored wonderfully as you labor in the great Kingdom of God to bring men to the standard of our common Lord and Master."

REVIEW OF EDGERTON TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Success of Events Last Week Leads to Plans for Larger and Better Events Next Year.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, Sept. 6.—The finals in Singles and Doubles were played Saturday afternoon before a large crowd. Although the fastest doubles in tennis were played in the morning, the spectators went away well satisfied.

The tournament as a whole has proved to be a huge success. Although several improvements could be made on the next one, people now realize that it is no small task for one man to take care of the tournament here at present. "How will the big one be run next year?"

The results of the tournament attracted more attention than was expected. The matches were run off a little slowly at first and it took a couple of days before the people, including the contestants, realized they were watching or participating in a real tennis tournament. It was not until the young players began their winning streak over the much older players that the fans were aroused. It might be well to explain the process used in handicapping the players. The contestants were divided into three classes, 1-2-3; according to the judgment of the committee, ranking them as players. The contestants in Class 1 played the ones in Class 2 fifteen points on every game; likewise Class 2 got fifteen points; likewise Class 2 got fifteen points. By using this method it enabled the poor players to have just as much chance as the best players for a handicap like this is rather difficult to overcome. It by no means detracts from the interest of the spectator for it increases it, not only to him but also to the player.

AUTO TRAVELERS PLEASED WITH TRIP THROUGH ROCKIES

According to Second Letter Received From Mr. Inman the Trip to the Coast is Proving Very Delightful.

Mr. and Mrs. Inman who left here sometime ago to travel to Los Angeles, Cal., in their automobile, are enjoying a very pleasant trip. Across the prairie and through very reliable and their camp life along the way is affording them much enjoyment. Other letters will follow telling of the rest of the journey through the desert and over the lower ranges of mountains that will be traversed by the travelers. Following is the letter received from Diamondville, Wyoming, under date of September 2:

Dear Editor: My last letter was dated Grand Island, Neb., Aug. 23, and now we are over 1000 miles on our journey. We would be in Reno today had we not had luck in our party. We met a Mr. J. H. Hise, his wife, son and daughter and at Grand Island he had a rear axle in his Cadillac break. We were laid out two days, then after we got it repaired we broke again, so three and one-half days more were lost. We will start Monday for Ogden. As we have had a very pleasant trip and any one with a good car ought to have the pleasure of the trip across the continent if he cares to enjoy life among the coyotes in the Rockies. It is life worth the living. Game is very plentiful, such as sage hens. They furnish us all the meat we want and as for fish, I caught eleven rainbow trout yesterday from one-half to two lbs. Mr. Hise and son caught the grasshoppers and I caught the trout in a stream named the Green River, which is full of trout the mountain home, commonly called canyon here. Wolves and coyotes are plentiful.

When we crossed the divide we were 7800 feet above sea level and before we got to the divide, at the Sherman monument, we were 9000 feet above sea level. We have climbed many short grades of 40, 50 and one 61 per cent with our load with ease. I have had no trouble whatever and we are over the worst of our road now. Our biggest day's run was from 7 o'clock until 6:30, 187 miles, between Cheyenne and Laramie and Rawlins, Wyoming. From there east to North Platte the roads are poor and full of what the westerners call "pitch holes," some of which are 8 to 10 feet deep.

From Ogden we will take a plunge into the desert. They say the roads there are fine, but not a boulevard by any means. Across Wyoming one sees nothing but sage brush and at one place there were 80 miles between stations where one could get no water. The water that is here is all alkali and must be boiled.

I am sitting outside of our tent writing this letter. Mr. Hise has an altitude gauge which shows that we are on a little knob 8214 ft. high and believe me, we don't run very far on one breath or walk far without sitting down to rest.

The axle trouble we have had is all that has marred one of the most pleasant trips I ever had and this is my third visit to California.

If any Janesville people wish to come to the coast and will write me I will give them the correct route and warn them against many inconveniences they would otherwise have to contend with.

When we arrive at Reno I shall write The Gazette again and tell of the rest of the journey to that place. Respectfully,
J. E. INMAN.

RESIDENTS OF PLYMOUTH LODGED IN COUNTY JAIL

Will Merritt and Will Kraft Held For Trial Monday on Complaint Made to Put Them Under Peace Bonds.

On complaint of Frank Ashby, a farmer living near Footville, Will Merritt and Will Kraft of the town of Plymouth, were arraigned in municipal court this morning. The complaint brought to put them under bonds to keep the peace. The trial was set for Monday and the two men were committed to the county jail to await trial. Ashby alleged that Merritt and Kraft threatened him on the road yesterday and threatened him with violence. It is also said that the men have been terrorizing the people in the vicinity of Footville. In court this morning they claimed that Ashby had bothered them and they had told him to stop it.

That they will have a good time is assured, especially when traveling under the care of such an expert guide.

ENGINE BEING REPAIRED BY NEW WELDING PROCESS

Engine 155 is in the shop where the broken frame is being repaired by the new thermic welding process which obviates the necessity of having the engine sent to the central shops at Chicago to have the framework taken apart as was done before this new process came into use. This is the fourth engine that has been repaired in this way at the local shop and the success in former cases has assured the employees that the company can be saved much time and expense by having repairs of this kind made here at the place where such breakdowns occur. This engine has been used recently in the gravel service north of the city, and while there had a portion of the framework broken which necessitated its being held up for the repairs that are now being made.

Engineer Murray and Fireman Williams with engine 648 double headed train 391 out of here this morning.

MAKING REPAIRS ON DISABLED ENGINE

New Platoon For Engines at Electric Plant Shipped Today and Engine Will be Working Tomorrow.

On Monday morning the platoon of the large Corliss engine at the plant of the Janesville Electric company broke down. The company has been somewhat handicapped as the result of the accident in furnishing electric light and power for the city. A new platoon, to take the place of the broken one, was shipped from the factory today and it is expected the engine will be in running order tomorrow. The accident forced the company to rely on two large engines to furnish the needed electric supply and the machines are being overworked to fulfill the task. The river is quite low and the dam furnishes no power for operating the generating machinery.

EDGERTON RECEIVES NEW BRIDGE PLANS

Erection of Structure Over Saunderson's Creek on Abilene Road Will be Rushed—Local News.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, Sept. 7.—The plans for a new bridge over Saunderson's Creek are out and the common council is arranging to commence the work there and push it along as fast as possible. The people who live Abilene way on that road are getting more than anxious about the bridge as it complicates the road to make quite a long drive when the road is blocked. The old bridge has been in service many years and is unsafe. With a new iron bridge spanning Saunderson's Creek at the point named and cement walk on the famous Croft hill, it can be truly said that the common council is up and doing.

HOPPING FOR HUSBANDS.

At the Irish seaside resort of Tramore, about seven miles from Waterford, stands a curious pillar surmounted by the metal figure of a man. It was built to enable mariners to distinguish between Tramore bay and Waterford harbor, but it has another and more peculiar use. Local tradition has it that if any unmarried woman succeeds in hopping round it three times she will get a husband within a year. Many women visitors are attracted to the place to test the value of the legend.

"The Cow and the Moon."

In the spectacular musical fantasy, "The Cow and the Moon," which Clara A. Sellen brings to the Myers Theatre Saturday, Sept. 16, matinee and evening, two characters of exceptional interest are given. That of Little Innocence, played by Miss Hazel Rice, and that of the smallest singing soprano now on the stage, and the part of great home, "the king of the moon," portrayed by Clarence Sterling, who is claimed to be one of the biggest men in extravaganzas. Innocence is the maid who in the play has never seen a man, and Domo the King of the Moon comes to Earth seeking a bride who must meet the requirements demanded by Innocence. Her miraculous escapes from his clutches assisted by some 45 other roles form a capital plot for extravaganzas. Musical numbers of the swinging, pleasing sort are interpolated from time to time, which together with 12 gorgeous changes of scenery make a delightful entertainment.

THE TOLL OF DEATH.

"One of the most beautiful passages in the English language, that well-known letter of Abraham Lincoln to Mrs. Bixby, condoling with her on the sacrifice of her five sons in the fight to preserve the Union, is recalled by a recent fatality in Pennsylvania. Industry exacts sacrifices, but the mothers are not offered such exquisite consolation.

"From the 'Railroad Employee' we learn that Phlegman James Moulton, of the Jersey Central, residing at Mauch Chunk, was killed in the switchyard. Such an accident is common enough, but he was the last of six sons, all killed in railroad work. His aged mother is prostrated, nor is there any one to offer her the tribute to Mrs. Bixby in the solemn pride that must be hers to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom."

"Is the sacrifice any less real or patriotic? Work is a better thing than war, and the transportation industry of the country must be conducted, even with this frightful toll of death. Doubtless we waste lives which could be saved. Our prodigality in that respect horrifies the student of industrial problems. Are we fatalists, and are the workers themselves incapable of applying lesson after lesson?"

"We can only repeat that all the legislation enforcing the use of safety appliances, passed into law in the past ten years, is absolutely worthless, so far as its chief object is concerned, without the co-operation of the individual. Our corporation managers should search their hearts deeply to see if they themselves have left anything undone. They owe at least this poor consolation to Mrs. Moulton."

This incident, related by an exchange, is being duplicated every day in the industrial world, and there is seldom a halo of glory connected with the tragedy.

The claim agent of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad published a little book, a time ago, addressed to the employees of that company.

It gave a summary of the accidents for a year, and with rare exception they could be traced to individual carelessness, for which the company was in no way morally responsible.

The laws which have recently been passed in Wisconsin, and other states, fail to recognize this fact, and are therefore unjust, for it matters little how many safeguards may be provided, there is nothing that an employer can do to provide brains for a careless employee.

THE TARIFF IN POLITICS.

"Some people may think that tariff revision is now to pass directly under the guidance of President Taft's tariff board—which is composed of whom, by the way? But they will find themselves mistaken. The tariff board may propose, but congress just as heretofore will dispose, and with small regard for what the board has to say. High protectionists have fought against the creation of the board and democrats have ridiculed it. Only progressive republicans have strongly favoured it, and they have been acting in hostility to the whole idea throughout this session. The tariff is in politics deeper than ever."—Springfield Republican.

It will be remembered that congress had no use for a tariff board and it was with great difficulty that President Taft succeeded in having one appointed. Congress is very jealous of its prerogative, and knowing that all tariff laws must bear the congressional stamp, the rights to formulate these laws without suggestion or interference, is regarded as a sacred right. This is why the tariff is a political issue, and there is no reason why it will not continue to be.

The issue of the next campaign will be the tariff, with no organized tariff defenders. The democratic party in as much of a free trade party as ever and can be counted on to play havoc with all kinds of protection.

The republican party, committed revision downward, entered the contest as a divided party, one faction demanding immediate revision, the other asking for time for intelligent action. Whatever may be the outcome, the tariff is bound to be the issue.

In the meantime the business of the country will be conducted on a conservative basis, and while a panic may not result, the industries will lay low and many people will be out of employment.

These unsettled conditions prevail to greater or less extent, during every presidential campaign, but will be more pronounced than usual next year because of the uncertainty of the outcome. Should the fight become bitter between the factions in the republican party a democratic president will be elected, and business will continue to wait for developments.

SMALL INVESTORS.

From statistics recently compiled by the Wall Street Journal it appears that 3,000,000 people, many of them women, are stockholders in the corporations of the country. Two hundred and forty-two of the large corporations report 376,000 stockholders.

It is found that many of these concerns which have been supposed to be controlled by men of great wealth, are in the hands of small shareholders, who are satisfied to trust the management to men of successful experience.

The figures, which are published in detail, are a revelation, and show that the light which has been winged against corporate wealth, is really a light against an army of thrifty investors.

The United States Steel company, for instance, has 120,000 shareholders, the Pennsylvania Railroad company has 70,000, while every other railroad in the country is liberally represented.

In New England the stock in most of the mills is owned by the masses, who prefer the small investment to a saving bank account.

The fact is frequently overlooked, that 52 per cent of the voters are taxpayers, and every taxpayer is a capitalist. It is about time that the people came to their senses in discussing capital.

According to the regular monthly reports of the Relief Departments of the Pennsylvania Railroad System, issued today, the sum of $178,811.92 was paid to members during the month of July, 1911. Of this amount, $126,861.47 represents the payments made on the lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie, and $52,010.45 on the lines west. Since the establishment of the fund, a total of $31,185,928.14 has been paid out. This would indicate that all corporations are not as soulless as represented. The same company recently paid a quarterly dividend of more than $6,000,000 to its 70,000 stockholders.

Senator La Follette will find no organized opposition in his home state, and will be permitted to name his own delegates to the republican national convention, but the progressive senators of other western states are up against a different proposition. President Taft will control the convention and his nomination is not a debatable question. If his election was as certain it would be a good thing for the business interests of the country.

The postal savings banks are proving very popular and the service should be extended over the country as rapidly as possible. The money which finds its way into circulation through this new channel, is practically new money which has been laid away for safe keeping, and while individual amounts are small the volume will be large. The dollar of value is the nimble dollar because it passes on and renders service in the passing. The postal savings banks stimulate circulation and release a lot of idle money which has long been inactive and of no value, even to the owner, except as a possession.

The city of Oklahoma has been engaged in a newspaper war which has been watched with interest by publishers throughout the country. "Three or four years ago the Tucker brothers, two practical printers, started a free morning daily. They made a good paper and enjoyed a liberal advertising patronage, but when the circulation increased to 20,000 the print paper bills absorbed the profits and left them on the verge of bankruptcy. They suspended last week badly in debt.

The age limit is an open question. Cleveland has a wealthy manufacturer in his 54th year who is still attending to business. He has not allowed himself to rust out or die of old age and so continues to work. He may be in the way of the next generation, but that doesn't seem to annoy him. The way to keep young is to "keep active," and this is what the Cleveland veteran is doing.

STATE PRESSE COMMENT.

It Arouses Discussion.

La Crosse Tribune: Referring to "The Janesville case," in which the state utility commission has found it inadvisable to lower water rates, Mr. Goltz's newspaper says:

"The Janesville case is not materially different from those occurring elsewhere. First we have the suspicion of the consumer toward a bill for a product which he has been unable to measure, and suspicion is carefully fanned until an exaggerated notion is held of the cost of furnishing the service and the profits resulting therefrom. Then, the matter gets into court, facts do not support imagination and except in small part the contention fails."

In compliance with the ruling of the supreme court the Standard Oil company is re-organizing and the thirty-three subsidiary companies, heretofore under one management, will become thirty-three independent companies. The Sherman anti-trust law may have been all right when it was adopted, and it may work out all right in breaking up large corporations. It remains to be seen how much better, if any, the people will be served.

The city of Omaha has adopted the commission form of government by a vote of about two to one, but so little interest was displayed that not more than half the voters took interest enough to vote.

The question of municipal ownership is again under discussion, and the water-works is the target. The people who favor the movement will discover that the taxpayers will be slow to bond the city to the limit for the money necessary.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 7.—The National Federation of Post Office Clerks went on record in their sixth annual convention here as emphatically opposed to strikes by government employees and unanimously endorsed Congressman S. SHAKESPEARE SAID:

"Throw physic to the dogs." Of course Shakespeare lived in the days of castor oil and eposum salts and so don't blame him. In Shakespeare's time bowel laxatives like cascara were unknown; the world took physic and there was always war somewhere or love-making. Pharmaceutical and chemical science of modern times has perfected bowel laxatives of just worth—laxatives that tone up, strengthen the natural action, stimulate the liver and assist nature. The very best of these are the Ladger Pink Liver Pills, composed of cascara and other vegetable laxative and tonic remedies.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

TO A HUSBAND.

Mr. Man, when you go home at night you like nothing better than to get inside your smoking jacket and slippers and rest. And when your wife wants you to go with her somewhere you are quite put out.

But—

Ask yourself, What has the wife been doing the long day, and whom has she seen? The grocer boy, or the policeman, or possibly the woman next door, with whom she has exchanged a few words. She has scarcely been out of the house, while you have seen many people and things.

She is made of the same sort of stuff—human stuff—as you.

In a little town in Iowa a fine middle-aged woman, devoted to her family, went out one morning and sat fire to the barn. She died a month later in an asylum.

"Too much to occupy her hands and too little to occupy her mind," said the doctor.

Do you see?

Her husband was a good man as man go. But the wife, whose work was never done and whose personality held the family together, was sacrificed every fiber of her being as wife and mother, and the husband did not see. Her only diversion was church on Sundays—when she could go.

You say the case is an extreme one? It is, perhaps, but it may serve to give you a woman's point of view.

Many a poor wife, driven by never ending tasks, lacking recreation, has developed unrest, brooded and sometimes died—or done a foolish thing.

Do you wonder?

And if, added to her sense of grinding monotony, there is the sense of neglect or dislike, what may you not expect?

Some day a thing the husband never dreamed of happens. And he cries out, "I did not understand."

If you, a man, cannot safely live without change of scene or break of monotony, neither can the woman at your side.

If the faithful wife cannot leave her duties in the daytime, but can do so when the supper dishes are done, go with her whither she wills to go, just as you would have gone with her in the old sweet days of courtship.

Also you may some time deserve the bitter apostrophe of the dying wife: "Carve not a stone when I am dead."

The praises which respectful mourners give

To women's graves, a tardy recompense, But speak them while I live.

Forget me when I die, the violets Above my rest will blossom just as blue Nor miss thy tears, when nature's self forgets.

But while I live be true.

Not Without Light.

Appleton Post: Its local water works company having manifested a disposition to resist disposing of its property at the price fixed by the rate commission, the city of Manitowish has offered the company a bonus of $9,000 to give up the works at once, without further legal parley. Manitowish is certainly keeping things moving in her effort to settle her water works difficulties, and in this respect is setting a good example to other places similarly situated.

And be Sensible.

Madison Times: The suffragettes are offering a prize for a hymn. Now if they want to make the name real interesting, why don't they change the spelling to "him?"

According to Fashion.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The "ankle-view" skirt is the latest wrinkle in feminine apparel. Evidently the designers of said skirt labor under the impression that we are from Missouri.

BELOVED WOMAN IS SUDDENLY CALLED

Miss Blanche Capelle Passed Away Last Evening at Her Home on South High Street.

Miss Blanche Capelle passed away at the home of her brother and sister on South High street last evening. Miss Capelle was born at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, January 17, 1879. She spent the first five years of her life at Oshkosh and thereafter she lived in Janesville until her death. She leaves surviving her two sisters and two brothers: Ella M. Capelle, Mrs. L. B. Rich, Chas. and Fred A. Capelle. Mrs. Rich resides in Minneapolis and all the others in Janesville. Miss Capelle followed her mother, who passed away a few weeks ago.

The deceased was a young woman of a cheerful and optimistic disposition and she possessed a most kindly spirit. She had a kindly religious nature. The spiritual phases of her character were most pronounced. She was a member of the Carroll Memorial Methodist Episcopal church of this city.

It was not a great surprise to the intimate friends of Miss Capelle to learn of her death. There was a strong bond of sympathetic union between the deceased mother and daughter. They were very much to each other and when the mother passed away, the daughter longed to follow. It was her wish to join her mother in the other land and she passed out of this life with perfect composure and joyous assurance of a blessed reunion.

For many years she had been a recent sufferer, due to an illness which finally resulted in her death. Notwithstanding her suffering she always maintained a cheerful demeanor and was over most thoughtful for others.

Her religious ideals were with her profound convictions. She looked upon death as the open door through which one passed from the sufferings of this life into the blessedness and joys of the other. Because of her illness she was not much in the ordinary currents of life. Her associates were largely confined to the medical and intimate friends of the family. Her aloofness from life and the restricted sphere of her activities, due to her illness, combined with a naturally thoughtful, religious and loving disposition, led her to reflect deeply upon the great problems of life. She had a profound philosophy and her spiritual strength was fed from sources that were unfailing. After her mother's death she said to her friends that her religious convictions should bring her comfort at such a time if ever; that she believed in the promises found in the Bible and in the teachings of the Christian religion; that she was comforted to feel that her mother had been relieved from the sufferings of this life and was at rest; and that a joyous meeting awaited her when death should release her from her physical bondage.

The funeral services will be held at the family home on South High street at three o'clock on Friday afternoon. Interment will be at Oak Hill cemetery. Rev. T. D. Williams, pastor of the Carroll Memorial church, will officiate.

CRISIS IN MOROCCAN SITUATION THIS WEEK.

crisis in the Moroccan situation and within the seven days will doubtless be determined whether Germany and France will engage in war or remain at peace. On Saturday, Sept. 2 was celebrated "Redan" day commemorating the 41st anniversary of the French military power by Germany. Many local journals fix this as the day when they expected a decision from Emperor William.

Ambassador Cambon has returned from Paris and brings what is virtually an ultimatum from France. It will be incumbent upon Germany to declare her attitude with some more promptness because the new French proposals will leave little doubt as to the extreme limit to which the public is prepared to go to buy off German moderation in Morocco.

His Majesty's speech at Aachen some time ago when he declared his readiness that his royal sons should sacrifice their lives on their country's altar "if things become grave," is widely interpreted as an answer to certain stories.

DYNAMITE PERILS 500 MEN

Apparent Plot is Discovered in Navy Yard in Boston.

Boston, Sept. 7.—An apparent plot to dynamite the lower end of the Charlestown navy yard was discovered when three heavy sticks of dynamite were accidentally found in the gigantic floating crane in the yard by workmen. The lives of 500 men were endangered.

The dynamite was secreted in the frame work of the crane and two workmen were welding hammers about a foot away.

Much dissatisfaction has been expressed recently at the installation of a system of scientific management under which each man is watched as he works and his results minutely noted down.

JOHN D.'S CHECK NOT GOOD

Returned by Portland Bank Marked "Not Sufficient Funds."

Portland, Ore., Sept. 7.—John D. Rockefeller's check was turned down by a Portland bank. It was for $50, issued by the Portland office of the Standard Oil company, and was returned by the Ladd & Tilton bank to the Oregon-Washington Railway company marked "not sufficient funds." Later local officials of the Standard Oil company made deposits sufficient to care for this and other checks.

Farmer is Held for Murder.

Cresco, Ia., Sept. 7.—Following the death of Leo Johnson, a farmer, at his home near here, Gordon Bowers, also a farmer, was arrested and held without bail, charged with murder. Johnson was shot during an altercation with Bowers.

UNVEIL STATUE TO STANTON

President Taft and Other Notables Present at Steubenville Ceremony.

Steubenville, O., Sept. 7.—Edwin M. Stanton, secretary of war under President Lincoln during the Civil war, was honored today by Steubenville, his place of birth, by the unveiling of a bronze statue that will perpetuate his features for all time.

President Taft, Gov. Judson Harmon, Maj. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, Judge William R. Day and the sons of the war president and war secretary, Robert T. Lincoln and Lewis H. Stanton, were among those who participated in the ceremonies, which formed the principal event of Stanton memorial week.

Some 15,000 persons were assembled outside the courthouse, in front of which the monument stands. It is of bronze, seven feet high, and rests on a granite pedestal eight feet high. It is the work of sculptor Alexander Doyle of New York, a former resident of Steubenville.

The Thing That Matters Most.

After all, the thing that matters most, both for happiness and for duty, is that we should habitually live with wise thoughts and right feelings.—John Morley.

GREAT FLIGHT ENDS MEET

Grahame-White Flies 33 Miles in 27:35 With Passenger.

Boston, Sept. 7.—The remarkable speed of 27:35 1-5 for 33 miles over water, carrying a passenger, was made by Claude Grahame-White, the British aviator, in winning the Boston Light race in his monoplane on the closing day of the second Boston-Harvard aero meet. His time was 20:05, without a passenger.

Earle L. Ovington of Boston and Tom Sopwith proved the biggest winners of the meet. Ovington carried away the largest purse, $11,782.

Sopwith was the most active man, with first place in 12 events and second place in ten others.

FIND WOMAN POLITICIAN DEAD

Mrs. Helen F. Dixon Dies in Squalor in Denver.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Helen F. Dixon, once the most prominent woman politician in Colorado, was found dead in her squalid home here.

Mrs. Dixon espoused in the popular cause when that movement spread over Colorado and did the lion's share toward the election of Gov. Davis H. Waite, during whose administration she had a marked influence in state affairs.

Following the downfall of the Populist movement Mrs. Dixon became addicted to alcohol and morphine.

WILSON SURE TAFT WILL WIN

Secretary Assures There is No Question About His Renomination.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 7.—"There is no question about President Taft's renomination and re-election. It is an certain as any future event can be," this was the declaration made by Secretary Wilson, who arrived here to attend the formal opening of the Stanley dam and irrigation project.

WOMEN SERVE AS JURORS

"Ladies and Gentlemen of the Jury" Now Proper in Washington.

Taroma, Wash., Sept. 7.—Women did jury service in county courts for the first time since Washington became a state. Embarrassed attorneys apologized as they asked women pertinent questions as to their age, their belief in the criminal laws of the state and their freedom from prejudice. In courts where women were jurors there was less wrangling between attorneys than at most trials.

Feet So Sore Couldn't Walk Down Stairs--

TIZ Cured Her Quick

If you have sore feet, tired feet, aching feet, lame feet, tender feet, smelly feet, corns, calluses or bunions read what happened to Mrs. Crockett of Jefferson. TIZ DID IT. Mr. Crockett says: "UNTIL THIS RECENT TREATMENT WITH TIZ I COULD NOT GET DOWN STAIRS WITHOUT AT TIMES HAVING TO STOP TO REST. I COULD NOT WALK DOWN STAIRS BEFORE IN PAST FIVE YEARS, EXCEPT BY STOPPING DOWN ON EACH STEP. WITH ONE TIZ AT A TIME, THIS IS REMEDIED. I SEND FIVE MORE BOXES."

No matter what ails your feet or what under heaven you have used without getting relief, just use TIZ. It's different. It acts right off. It cures sore feet to stay cured. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely plug up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. You will feel better the first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all drug stores, 25c per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co.

EXPRESS RATES LOWERED

Illinois Commission Order 23 Per Cent. Cut, Effective Oct. 1.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—An order directing a cut in express rates throughout Illinois, amounting to 23 per cent., was issued by the Illinois railroad and warehouse commission. The reduction will be effective October 1.

The decision of the commission was reached after a series of hearings at which both shippers and representatives of the express companies were given an opportunity to present their arguments.

While the slash in rates is not all that the shippers sought, it is regarded as a satisfactory forward step in their movement to bring express charges down to what is regarded as a reasonable level.

Plans by the express carriers for seeking an injunction to restrain the enforcement of the commission's order will, it was announced, be held in abeyance for a time.

A Great Advantage to Working Men.

J. A. Maple, 125 S. 7th St., Steubenville, O., says: "For years I suffered from weak kidneys and a severe bladder trouble. I learned of Foley Kidney Pills and their wonderful cures so I began taking them and sure enough I had as good results as any I heard about. My backache left me and to top of my business, expressman, that alone is a great advantage. My kidneys acted free and normal, and that saved me a lot of misery. It is now a pleasure to work where it used to be a misery. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me and have my highest praise." Badger Drug Co.

ATWOOD AT GOVERNORS ISLAND

At The End of The Longest Airship Trip on Record

Aviator Harry N. Atwood alighting at Governors Island, New York after completing his Mississippi to Atlantic flight. Above in picture of Atwood carrying a satchel packed within letters authored along the route to be distributed. This is the first time on record that an airship has actually made a practice of carrying letters from one section of the country to another and even packages have been delivered by airship, but never before have intercontinental messages and letters been conveyed through the air.

There is a strong likelihood that Atwood will retire from the aviation field to rest on his honors, having broken the world's record for distance.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

A LETTER has just come to hand which is so much more interesting than anything I could hope to write, that I have presented my correspondents with my space today:

"I am emboldened," states the writer after the usual introduction and a little soft soap, "to come to you today with what I know is an unusual subject."

"The fact is I am a bachelor. I am forty-five, six feet tall, weight 175 pounds, am a blond, in perfect health, fine teeth, my only claim to good looks, I am very well educated, not extraneously so, but very well read and well informed on a good many subjects. I have a profession in which I have for the most part, made a fair living but having no family, have missed the chief incentive to make any real exertion."

"Now, strange to say, I do not like being a man nor do I like man's work. In my tastes I believe I am more of a woman. I am a good cook, like the domestic life, really love to cook, never find it a trouble but a pleasure. Oh, yes I know what I am talking about for I have cooked in the only home I ever had with a relative, and I do not understand how a woman can dislike cooking; and prefer to work in an office or store. I can make beds and sweep and often make up my own room, simply because I prefer to do so. I do not know how I might make out at sewing, but I have sewed on buttons and patched."

"Now Miss Cameron, the question is this: Do you suppose in your large experience with human nature and the world in general, that it would be possible for me to find a woman willing to marry me? I mean a nice woman, an attractive one and also one who simply delights in that affection, and would continue that work and bring in the wherewithal for the maintenance of the household, while I remained at home and did the housekeeping and all that would be necessary for a cozy, well-kept home."

"You simply can't imagine how I long for a home, a real home, cozy and domestic. I am tired of a bachelor's life. I have led rather a clean and steady life as men go, nothing out of the common, neither very good, nor very bad. I could have married several times, real nice girls—but, well I admit I was a coward—afraid not to succeed in being all in a hummel way that the women of today seem to consider essential. Now, if a woman makes the money she knows where it comes from and will perhaps not exact so much, and for my part I will engage to keep my promise to always have a bright and cozy home with the means ready when she returns. You see I have already done that for my relative so I know what I am promising to do. I do not think this idea a really unusual one with lots of men. I have heard men express themselves in nearly this way—but they do not like their feeling to be known, thinking it unmanly. I do not think it is more unmanly than for a woman to do domestic duties and prefer outside work. If the Maker of all, the Supreme Being, has put the soul of a woman in a man's body and vice versa, who is to blame? Certainly not the man or woman in the case."

"I certainly could love some nice woman very much, and be, oh so good to her, if she could be satisfied with my humble self, and how I would serve her with every fibre of my being."

Sometimes I fancy this is a make-believe letter, written just to "bait" me, and then again I believe it is genuine. Anyway, I think it is a very interesting point of view.

The KITCHEN CABINET

SUCCESS in housekeeping adds credit to the woman of intellect and a lustre to a woman's accomplishments.

THE USEFUL TRAY.

"The revival of the tray, and its many uses as a labor saver, would make a long story. The tray of greatest importance is the invalid's tray, and now one sees such beautifully matched sets of china for the invalid's tray that being served in bed need be only a pleasure. The tray may be as rich and expensive as one's purse permits. Those of some rare old embroidery or dainty design in china, framed in mahogany, are very choice and delightful to possess, as they may express one's individuality; such a tray need not be expensive, and will be a joy forever. The little useful bedroom tray is common to all, holding the matches, candle stick, pitcher and water glass. This may be of china, with the articles to match. Those of glass may be kept bright and shining on a tray of nickel or silver."

The breakfast tray is a great favorite abroad, and is becoming more and more popular here.

The maid in a small family finds it especially helpful, as she may carry the tray with the breakfast steaming hot, and go back to her work without a dining table to set and clear away. On days of extra work an hour in the morning thus saved is a great help towards the day's labor.

For a Sunday night supper or for a midnight lunch there is nothing so useful as a tray. The arrangement and placing of all the food and dishes can be quickly done and a chafing dish of a cup of tea or cocoa finishes the service, which may be carried to the living room or library and there served.

There is the nursery tray with unbreakable dishes which may be thrown on the floor without injury. These are decorated with Mother Goose designs. Then the soup set with tray is another which is well liked.

The bread and milk set has its own tray. For the folk this is very popular.

Napkins to use with a tray should be small.

Economy should be used in saving time and strength as well as in saving money.

We want to get the maximum comfort from the minimum labor, and we have any device or advice which will help us to meet that end.

CHEESE VS. MEAT.

Dr. C. F. Langworthy of the department of agriculture, has determined by experiment that cheese is superior to meat, in the proportion of 84 to 82, representing the heat and energy producing power of the two foods in calories. He concludes that cheese is as digestible as meat.

Of course there are several kinds of meat and several kinds of cheese, and this experiment takes no account of the difference in the two foods after they have passed the stomach. Both serve principally as flesh formers. Neither is necessary in an ideal diet, but if either is used, cheese should be preferred, on account of its freedom from uric acid producing elements and on account of the far greater tendency of meat of any kind to injurious fermentation in the intestinal tract, especially in combination with fine fresh white bread, to develop the condition favorable to appendicitis and to maintain auto-intoxication. If a high protein food must be used, cheese is to be preferred to meat, and the best cheese is that known as cottage cheese, which can be made at home from skim milk.

An Alpine Garden.

The highest garden in the world is said to be the Alpine garden of botany, which was laid out by the late Canon Chanoir, formerly rector of the Chinese of Little St. Bernard. It is situated at an elevation of 2,200 meters, or 7,250 feet. Here are to be found almost all species of mountain flowers, not only those common in the Alps, Pyrenees, Carpathians, the Caucasus and the Balkans, but even from far off Himalaya. The canon conceived the idea in 1858, but it was not until 1902 that his project became effective. In the latter year the commune of Thulle gave him the land.

FAILURE TO PAY HAT BILLS PUTS MILLINER IN CANKRUPCY.

New York City.—For the want of $5,000 in cash Herman P. Tappan, a fashionable Fifth Avenue milliner, has gone into bankruptcy. He claims that he has bills amounting to the amount of $5,000 among his rich patrons and famous actresses. He admits that he has never attempted to collect these bills because of their trivial nature in each case, as none of the bills exceed $100 and some of them run as low as $6. No one has refused to pay, but Tappan claims to have lost $187,000 in poor accounts while serving the elite of society and the stage. Among those who are indebted to him are: Mrs. Patrick Campbell, $62; Mrs. Waldorf Astor, $52; Mrs. W. Gould Brokaw, $125; Mrs. Osgood Phelps, $20; Ethel Levy, $67; Florence Ziegfeld, Jr., $100; Mrs. Oliver Iselin, $25; Mrs. Charles Mann (Gibson), $25; Joseph Duveen, $3; Miss Louise Brown, $10; Mrs. W. Tappan's liabilities are placed at $39,808 and his nominal assets are $11,202. The indebtedness due the milliner aggregates $5,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Upton Sinclair, the author and social colonizer, has created a storm of discussion by naming Harry Kemp, a young poet as the cause of his domestic troubles and the reason which led him to seek a divorce from his beautiful wife. HEART AND HOME TALKS

The Fine Art of Home-Making.

A N editor has said, "Many women of the present generation have never learned the fine art of home-making."

It is a pleasant phrase—"The fine art of home-making"—and it conjures up a beautiful picture of a house all of bright, cheery rooms, where the furnishings are comfortable and harmonious, the food that can be used and yet delight the eye wherever it rests upon them; of well-cooked, appetizing, daintily served meals; of household machinery that runs noiselessly; of a gracious mistress, pleasant, smiling, loving, and with always a hospitable welcome for the guest; of happy, healthy children; of a master who finds life good because of the love that awaits him here when the day's work is over.

The land was filled with such homes fifty years ago. Are they disappearing today?

Without doubt, such a home depends largely upon its mistress. And without doubt, the women who know how to thus manage a home are steadily diminishing in numbers. Will it follow then, that this old-time home of comfort and cheer and hospitality will disappear? Will the fine art of home making gradually become a lost art?

It is a question not easily answered. Many forces are at work today that were unknown when the fine art of home-making flourished. We may have to change our ideals somewhat in regard to the perfect home, and we will probably have to change our attitude toward the home-maker.

For one thing, it takes a much larger amount of money today to run the ideal home than it did several generations ago. For another, good helpers are difficult to get. Therefore, the woman who is either without money or without servants must do the work herself.

Fifty years or so ago, she did this without loss to herself in any perceptible way. All her sisters were doing it, and the work had its own rewards.

But today, this is different. With our more complex living, if she does her own work, she has little time or energy for anything else; and frequently, she has little money. And although theoretically, the home-maker is set upon a throne; in reality, she is usually left in the kitchen, and neglected for those who have cultivated arts other than those of home-making. All about her are her sisters with their purses full of their own money, and their lives full of interests and pleasures. And when she looks out from her kitchen window and sees them with their larger lives and well-filled pocketbooks, home-making seems to pall.

These changes may compel us to change our ideas of the home. And though we may keep the home atmosphere of love and comradeship, we may have to install it in the rooms of an apartment, where the work of cleaning is done by outsiders, and the meals partaken in the common dining-room. Or we will have to give the home-maker greater recognition and more money than she is receiving at present.

Perhaps if we would reform ourselves in some respects, home-making would not become a lost art. But forces are certainly at work at present that point to its disappearance in the far, old-time sense.

IRISHMEN ENJOY LONG AND PLEASING SESSION LAST NIGHT

Initiation Followed by Banquet,
Speeches and Music Afforded Much Enjoyment—National and State Officers in Attendance.

Local members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and especially those who were so fortunate as to be taken into the order at their meeting in the Eagle's hall last night will long remember the occasion as one of the most delightful they ever experienced. With everything favorable for an excellent time and all in a mood for enjoyment the whole program was carried out with entire satisfaction to the large number of members and visitors that were present.

National President James J. Regan, of St. Paul, was the guest of honor and the large class of candidates about twenty-five in number, were highly honored in being welcomed into the order by this leader of Hibernians. His speech on "The History of Ireland and the Good of the Hibernian" was the feature of the evening's program and stirred the hearts of the audience in a way that will not be forgotten soon.

Several members from the Milwaukee and Madison divisions were present and among them was the state president, Joseph Callan, of Milwaukee. First on the evening's program was the business session of the division followed by the initiation of the candidates. Joseph DeLaney, president of the Janesville division, presided at the meeting throughout, and, assisted by the other officers and several members of the division, conducted the initiatory services with remarkable success and satisfaction to all concerned.

After the initiation all present enjoyed a delightful entertainment of music and speaking while the sumptuous banquet was being served. President DeLaney noted on the occasion and called upon several of the visitors and local men who responded with pleasing speeches that gave evidence that the interests of Hibernianism is being safeguarded faithfully through out the state where these gentlemen can make their influence felt.

Dean Bolley of this city, who is state chaplain of the order, gave the address of welcome to the national and state presidents and to the other visiting members and his remarks, in usual, aroused the enthusiasm of his hearers in a very pleasing manner.

National President Regan followed with a stirring address in which he pictured briefly the history of the Emerald Isle, its trials and struggles in the past and present and then outlined the good that is being done through out this country by the loyal sons of Ireland who are united as members of the A. O. H.

Other speeches by the state president, Father McGinley and Father Tiedel, Dr. McKee of Madison, and several others were equally entertaining and instructive. Each speaker did his share in arousing the interest of the members and won hearty applause for the part which they contributed to making the evening one which will long be remembered by all who were in attendance.

J. J. Cunningham spoke on the representative of the Janesville division and his speech was of much interest to all, especially to the new members as it portrayed the work being done in the local division and held up to them the ideals of the order and the work in which all are expected to do their part.

During the evening several musical selections were rendered and the number in which they were rendered reflects credit both upon the persons who filled the parts as well as those who arranged the program. "We'll go back to Erin some day, May we not," by John Murphy; "Where the River Shannon flows," by John O'Brien; and "Kilbuckey," by John O'Brien; were a few of the musical selections which afforded much pleasure to the audience.

The closing ode, "A Nation Once Again," was sung by J. H. Burns, accompanied by all who were present, ended the program and the festivities were closed at an early hour this morning.

Officers of the Janesville division and several of its members are planning to attend the meeting to be held at Madison on the 18th instant when the local officers will initiate a large class at that place.

One of the most dangerous articles which a man can secrete about his person is the combusting match, which spits at you like a mother cat emerging from a hole. We saw a man try to light a cigarette with one of these bad fellows the other day, and before he got away with the first drag the match landed on his glove and made it look like an advertising sample for a incendiary. Beware of the match which goes off with a noise like a sputtering roman candle.

A colony of chicken mites can keep a hen busier than a barkeep at an Elks' reunion. The chicken mite is a fourth cousin to the Jersey mosquito, but it has all of its relatives' skinned as producers of worry in the henhouse. You can pour kerosene on the surface of a chicken's head for a week without shortening its life, but a drop of coal oil applied to the eyelids of a chicken mite will knock him as stiff as a pulled with the humpage. Nothing will chase a contented family of chicken mites out of the hen house quicker than a dose of saw-toothed turpentine, rubbed into the pinfeathers after a hot bath.

Work and Prayer.

Work with all your might; but trust not in the least in your work. Pray with all your might for the blessing of God; but work, at the same time, with all diligence, with all patience, with all perseverance. Pray, then, and work. Work and pray, and still again pray and work, and this all the days of your life.—George Muller.

Force of Good Intention.

Plain good intention, which is as easily discovered at the first view as fraud is surely detected at the last, let me say, of no mean force in the government of mankind.—Edmund Burke.

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

In his rooms, forgetful of his promise to telephone Warburton, he threw himself upon the bed to ponder the next move; and exhaustion, superinduced by excitement, overcame him almost immediately. For the better part of an hour he slept without stirring, and awakened in the end only to the shrilling, prolonged and not-to-be-denied ring of the telephone by the head of his bed.

Still a little stupid with sleep, he required a moment or two to grasp the import of the switchboard operator's advice, to the effect that a Mr. Cross, representing the Evening World, would like to see Mr. Bradstreet West. The message was repeated in accents peremptory before he comprehended that he had been run to earth.

"Ask the gentleman to come up at once," he said, and, seizing his hat, left the room as soon as he had finished speaking.

Ascending a single flight of the stairway that wound round the elevator shaft, he waited until the car began to rise, then rang. As he had foreseen, it paused at the floor below to discharge the newspaper man before coming up for him. As he stepped into the cage he pressed a dollar into the operator's palm.

"Down," he demanded; "ground floor. And don't stop for anybody."

A single minute later he was in the street. Haste being the prime essential of the situation, he dodged round the corner into Sixth avenue, walked a block uptown and turned through to Broadway.

There suddenly, as he paused at the upper end of Longacre square, doubt which way to turn, what to do, he quickened to sensibility of his solitude, and knew himself more utterly alone in that hour than ever he had been throughout his days.

A passing handmaid pulled in to his signal. He entered, giving to the address of Katherine Thaxter's home.

There was a crimson glare of sunset down the street when he alighted and paid his fare.

"Just in time," said Coggett; "I was to come to tea today—I begged the privilege only yesterday."

He paused, silenced by a presentiment brood of the aspect of the house. At every window the shades were drawn level with the sills. The light of brownstone steps, littered with wind-swept dust and debris, ran up to heavy oaken doors, tight-closed. The seal of a burglar's protective concern stared at him from a corner of one of the drawing-room windows. Only in the old-fashioned unmetron were there signs of life; the arched gateway stood open; a gas jet glimmered through such-curtains.

Heavily Coggett turned into the area, and rang the basement bell.

After some time the door was opened to him and he entered, to have his hand caught and fawned upon by the aged butler who had smuggled him sweets when Coggett in the pride and pomp of his first knickerbockers had come to stay with Katherine in her nursery.

"Oh, Mr. Coggett, Mr. Coggett!" the old voice quavered. "God bless the day, sir! I've seen the papers and I said that you'd be here, sir, as soon as ever you got back home. I knew 'twould turn out so, sir, from the first; I've never failed to stand up for you and say you never did it. . . . But a black shame it is justice was so long in coming!"

Sommes rambled on, garrulous in semi-senile joy. Coggett leaned wearily against the wall of the gloomy basement hallway, with no heart to interrupt. At length, however, he found his voice.

"Thank you, Sommes," he said, gently. "But—Miss Katherine?"

The answer he had foreseen, hopelessly. "Gone, sir—gone this many a day. . . . You know what happened, sir."

"I can guess. But tell me." He steeled himself against the disclosure of what he already knew with intuitive certainty.

"Mrs. Graham died—you know that, sir?"

Sommes named Katherine's aunt, with whom she had lived after her parents' death.

"During my trial—yes, I knew."

"She never believed you guilty, sir. Perhaps you'd like to know . . ."

"But Miss Katherine?"

The old man shook his head mournfully. "Mad, sir, mad . . ." he murmured.

Coggett caught his wrist fiercely. "What's that you say?"

"I say she was mad, sir, to do what she done, and that I'll say 'twould cost me my place. . . ."

It wasn't a decent three months after Mrs. Graham passed away, sir—you'd been sent away barely a month—when she married him."

"Blackstock?"

"Yes, sir. . . . She didn't know what she was doing, sir. I've thought it was what I've heard called infatuation. She didn't know her own mind when he was talking to her. He carried her clean off her feet, so to speak. . . . So they were married and went away."

"To Germany, I understood, sir."

"You're heard."

"Never a word—not a line. I sometimes wonder at it, sir. She left me a bit of money to run things on till she returned, but that's gone long ago, sir, and I've had to draw upon my savings. . . . She must know."

"Down," he demanded; "ground floor. And don't stop for anybody."

CHAPTER IV.

To the boatyard and ship-chandlering establishment of a certain Mr. Huxtable in the town of Palmyra, on the eastern bank of the Acushnet river, there came—or, rather, drifted with the tide of a casual fancy—toward the close of a day in June, Our Hero Coast.

A reclining sun threw his shadow athwart the floor of the chandlery. Huxtable glanced up from the middle of papers on his desk. Coast lounged easily in the doorway, with one shoulder against the frame; a man notably tall and slender and graceful, besides, with a simple dignity of manner that asserted itself in the Huxtable understanding, with clothing well-worn and travel-stained. Out of a face moderately browned, his dark eyes glimmered with a humor whimsical, regarding Huxtable.

The object of their regard pushed up his spectacles for a better view. "Well," he inquired, not without a suspicion of grim resentment, who was not weathered to laughter at his own expense.

It happened, however, that Coast's amusement sprang from another cause; his own utter irresponsibility, which alone had led him to the chandlery, he considered hugely diverting.

"I was just thinking," he said, smiling, "that now would be a useful time to buy a bank."

Huxtable, possessed of an inherent predilection for taciturnity, liable, ever and anon, to be sore beset if not wholly put to rout by the demon Curiosity (a familiar likewise legitimately handed down to him by several generations of New England forebears), with a mute nod to signify that he had heard and now awaited without prejudice a more explicit declaration.

"A bank," Coast added, "preferably of the center-board cat type, with a hard-working motor auxiliary."

The Huxtable mind, which you are to believe typical of its caste, like a ship wisely navigated, moved cautiously in well-bounded channels. It clung to tradition, whether in the business of boat building, which it pursued to admiration, or in the lighter diversion of humor, to which its attitude resembled that of the ancestor worshipping heathen Chinese. Prominent symptoms of a reversion to type in the matter of wit were betrayed by the corrugation of the Huxtable wrinkles.

"To go sailin' in?"

"After this utterance, tradition flapped its wings and screamed; Huxtable himself condensed to chuckle; Coast, to a tolerant smile. "Possibly," he conceded. "Have you such a boat?"

"I might have," Huxtable admitted cautiously. "Come along." He rose and led the way through a back door into the boat yard.

With a twist of his eyebrows spelling doubt, Coast followed. He was not wholly satisfied that there was any wisdom latent in this latest freak of his errant fancies. For a fortnight he had given impulse to his head, and so, docile to its aimless divagations, had found contentment of a sort—more a parody than the real thing; dreamless rest won through wholesome bodily fatigue, a waking distraction bred of constant change of scene; thin ice over the troubled depths of a heart embittered. Eastward from New York he had wandered, mostly foot, unknown, unrecognized, Warburton alone cognizant of his movements, and that under strict injunction of silence; thus he had come blindly, seeking succor of his distemper, finding only the oblivion of fatigue. And recently he had become unusually conscious that even that was losing its effect, as an opiate will in a frame too long habituated to its action; now and again the thought of Katherine and Blackstock would crawl in his mind, virgulous, poisoning the very sunlight.

Here, without passage, he found his whim aiming for salt water. Was he to humor it? Would he find healing in the swing of the seas, the savor of spray, the hiss of waters broken by plunging bows, the gurgling astern?

Huxtable led him directly to a little vessel in a cradle on the ways and bright with new paint. "The Echo," he introduced her. "Five year old, weather-wise, sound and sweet, fast and able. Owner left her with me for sale. Seven hundred and a bargain."

Coast strolled round the boat with an eye critical of her lines, then clambered up the skeleton ribs of the cradle and dropping into her cockpit, scrutinized Huxtable's catalogue of attributes. Presently, he climbed down again, impressed that the boat would probably justify its recommendation to the latter.

"When can you put her in the water?"

"In fifteen minutes."

"Do so, then, please, and have the gasoline tanks filled and the batteries wired up. . . . I'll wait those besides." He found a pencil and scrap of paper and scribbled a list of supplies. . . . "You've a spare mooring off shore?" he inquired, and received an affirmative. "Then put her off; I'll sleep aboard her tonight. Now I'll take a turn up town and buy provisions and things."

He fitted out without thought of economy; in the list of his acquisitions he could find no lack; by nightfall the Echo was furnished with everything that Coast could think of as essential or desirable for coast-wise cruises, whether brief or protracted.

There was no plausible excuse for his failing to sleep; the Echo rode without much perceptible motion, moored about a hundred yards off shore; waters whispered seductively alongside; the town was quiet. Yet slumber was denied him; an unwonted excitement sparked his imagination, kindled by a sense of adventure distilled from tomorrow's promise.

At five bells he rose and went on deck to smoke, his trouble heavy upon him. The cockpit was not more drenched with moonlight than with dew, but the air was motionless and suave; in pyjamas and slippers, loling upon the dry side of an overturned seat cushion, he felt no need of heavier clothing.

Presently a dash of air stirred feebly; catpaws darkened the silver; whiting, the air died; the flawed surface of the harbor smoothed and brightened. Then again the breeze fanned up out of the northwest, vacillating, advancing, languishing, waxing gradually in volume until it blew full and free.

Coast shrugged to the chill and rose to go below, but paused, attracted by a stir of life aboard a small, two-masted schooner that had been riding idly at anchor between two and three hundred feet away toward the ship-channel.

He saw a movement of bustling men upon her deck. Her sailing lights appeared; a green starboard light glared at him fixedly. The mainsail was hoisted, the foresail went up. Then, falling off broadside to the oblique current, the vessel shaped her course handily for the harbor mouth, bumps crashing to port as the red eye swung to bear on Coast. As she drew abreast he could see her deck quite clearly, glistening in the white glare that threw the scurrying figures of the crew into clear black relief. They went about their tasks adeptly, sur-footed and alert, with a curious detachment of attitude, having no regard whatever, apparently, for that which held Coast spellbound.

Bullock With Two Hearts.

There was killed recently at Deptford, London, a bullock of phenomenal development. The animal, which was aged 12 months, was found to have two hearts, one being of normal size and the other somewhat smaller. Such a freak has never been known before in the annals of the market.

Woman's Danger Periods Made Safe

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Here is proof:

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the Change of Life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold. I had creepy sensations and could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I had a tumor."

"By reading one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Nathan B. Grenton, 51 No. Main St., Natick, Mass.

ANOTHER SIMILAR CASE.

Cornwallville, N. Y.—"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time for Change of Life, nervousness, and a fibroid growth."

"Two doctors advised me to go to the hospital, but one day while I was away visiting, I met a woman who told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and I know it helped me wonderfully. I am very thankful that I was told to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Wm. Boughton, Cornwallville, N. Y., Greene Co.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

It says "Calumet" — For the critical housewives of America have found that Calumet Baking Powder makes the most appetizing, light, wholesome food — that Calumet is the most economical and dependable of all Baking Powders.

If you, too, Mrs. Housewife, want to learn what Calumet means to you, bake with it just one batch of biscuits. If you don't find it unlike any other — so much greater in leavening power — in uniformity — in purity — return it, and get your money back.

That's all we ask — and think what it means to you to always be sure that each time you bake you will have the most tempting biscuits, pastry, etc. Think of it — the highest quality Baking Powder at a moderate price — the most economical in use. Cheap big can kinds give you quantity, but not quality. High-priced trust brands mean extravagance. For no Baking Powder can be equal in quality to Calumet. Was not that proven when it received the Highest Award at World's Pure Food Exposition?

Don't be deceived — ask for Calumet — and get it!
